The Miyetti Quarterly Law Review, published by Miyetti Research and Publications, is a peer reviewed Journal with the aim of advancing theoretical and practical insights into legal Issues arising from Nigerian Law, thereby making original contributions to legal knowledge. The articles are tailored to the Nigerian legal system with inter-disciplinary Law Practices in focus. It also seeks to publish articles that address comparative perspective in other Jurisdictions with concomitant relevance for legal education in Nigeria. We are pleased to present a call for papers on the theme: Law and Security, War Crimes, and Terrorism.

Indubitably, the role of Law in enhancing security or the role of security in the development of Law remains ever green. In Nigeria, given the myriad of security challenges, this century especially, impels deep research. The world-wide concerns of war crimes, crimes against humanity, genocide, rape, murder, arson and other traditional war crimes and insurgencies, continue to take the ingenuity of scholars, the world over. Closely linked to war crimes in the topical Frankeinsten Moustert-Terrorism that has defined international acceptable definition and hence dropped as a crime under the International Criminal Court Statute. In various parts of the world, terrorists strike by minutes, wrecking maximum havoc on the state and civilians.

Cognisant of these developments and their implications for Law the Editorial Board of Miyetti Quarterly Law Review, constituted of seasoned legal practitioners, distinguished Senior Advocates of Nigeria and accomplished Professors of Law, invite articles for publication on these cutting-edge issues which include, but are not limited to, the following:
